ABOUT ME

I'm Gonzalo Chamorro, a 19-year-old Argentine artist, in the process of becoming a 3D designer and visual effects artist. I started in digital art at the age of 13, evolving in each project, including 2D designs, video editing, and animation. Currently, I am a student of 3D Design and Visual Effects at the University of San Martín, known for my analytical approach and passion for learning.

VFX ARTIST

Since my beginnings as a VFX artist at the age of 13, I designed logos and flyers, edited videos, and created 2D animations for various projects. As I grew, my skills expanded to more complex designs such as graduation banners and intros for YouTube channels, standing out for my versatility, even delving into football jersey design. Subsequently, I delved into 3D VFX, studying independently and later entering university after a rigorous selection process. I collaborated with the company GAMMA, applying 3D modeling and visual effects for different brands. My trajectory reflects a natural progression and the breadth of my artistic knowledge.
